No more school?

Yesterday the Principal told all the students at Crossroad School, "I have some good news for you. You won't go to school in the future. You'll stay at home to learn. From Monday through Friday you will have lessons by computer."

Tim and Mary were happy because they hate getting up early in the morning. "We won't have to get up early anymore! We will be able to get up at 11 o'clock in the morning," Mary said. "We'll be able to do our lessons in bed!" said her brother.

The Principal continued: "You need to buy a laptop, a cell phone, some headphones, and a webcam," he said. "At 7 o'clock your teachers will call you. Then you will turn on your computers and your webcam. Your teachers will be able to see you through the webcam."

The next week the lessons started. Tim stayed in bed for his lessons. His teacher couldn't see that he was in bed through the webcam. Mary put chocolate behind her laptop and ate it during her lessons. The teacher couldn't see the chocolate through the webcam. It was great for a few days.

After a week Mary asked Tim, "What do you think of these lessons, Tim?" "I hate them," he said. "Studying at home is boring." Then Mary said, "I want to see my friends. I want to go to school again!"
